EXCELLENCE EXPANDED in the MCCONNELL PHYSIOTHERAPY GROUP

SYDNEY: The McConnell Physiotherapy Group have expanded their service of excellence to include services utilising the SOLID Racks SIS wall system. The McConnell Group installed the SOLID Racks wall system to help provide a more holistic offering to their customers. McConnell physiotherapist Chris Effeney said “It allows us to progress people from the acute stage of rehab through to return to sport. The SOLID Racks system allows us to have a complete gym in a confined space that looks very presentable and is easily managed.”

The SIS wall system allows an enterprise to recover and make better use of available wall space. But in a service focused business such as a physiotherapy company it offers a range of other advantages as well. In particular it allows a business to have more customers utilise their space at the same time. And it allows many of those customers to carry out exercises or training without close supervision and without using complex equipment. Indeed, as noted by McConnell Physiotherapy “The versatility of the wall allows for multiple people to use the space at the same time. We have had all shapes and sizes use the equipment and have been easily able to adjust the inserts to suit all patients.”

That user flexibility and adaptability is a key advantage offered by the SOLID Racks SIS wall system and helps mark it as a unique product suitable for any business in the health, healthcare, remedial health and rehabilitation sectors.
